Business & Finance Management Solutions

Introducing IRIS Exchequer

The power to transform your business

IRIS Exchequer is a flexible, robust and future-proof business and finance management solution

Since the first installation over 20 years ago, thousands of users have come on board every year. IRIS Exchequer is found in sectors ranging from advertising to telecommunications, not-for-profit to retail. Typically, these organisations will have between 3 and 100 users.

Information - your most valuable asset

In a rapidly changing world, fast access to key business information is critical

Strong management reporting and powerful drill-down capabilities have positioned IRIS Exchequer as a leader in its field.

It offers an unrivalled ability to view 'the big picture' of current conditions within your business and then analyse the underlying transactions and root causes of any anomalies. With simple, logical navigation and a high-performance inbuilt search engine, finding information in IRIS Exchequer is truly effortless.

Don't underestimate the power of IRIS Exchequer to transform your business as you gain unprecedented insight into your most - and least - profitable activities.

We have much better control and visibility over our finances since adopting IRIS Exchequer. We can drill-down to any level, giving us full historical data on any financial period.

Wide-ranging support for your day-to-day business

Time is a precious commodity. With IRIS Exchequer, not only do you save time entering data, but also valuable hours every month using this information

As a fully integrated system, data entered once into IRIS Exchequer can be used across the system. This reduces administration and input errors too.

Productivity enhancing tools and short-cuts help users automate many routine business tasks, so your staff achieve much more with less effort and can focus on more strategic activities.

IRIS Exchequer streamlines your processes at every stage. For example, communications with your extended network of customers, partners and suppliers become more efficient and cheaper through paperless technology.

IRIS Exchequer lets you set reminders for yourself and others and manage them through a workflow diary. Should you wish, it can instantly alert you on anything of significance within your business.

A system that evolves with your business

One of the many features which distinguish IRIS Exchequer is the freedom you have to extend its scope across your business

You can start today with core financial software and then add modules for business intelligence, customer relationship management, commercial software and costing, as and when you need them.

You can also upgrade on specific functions such as multi-currency. Start with a dual-currency version. Then, as your business 'goes global', easily move up to multi-currency.

IRIS Exchequer is designed to support your organisation today and in the years ahead as you expand and diversify your business activities. The latest technologies are adopted, but only where they will deliver real tangible business benefits and offer a rapid return on investment.

Regular updates focus on making IRIS Exchequer even easier to use and reflect any new statutory requirements. All software development is carried out internally, with rigorous quality assurance. Development work complies with the BASDA (Business Application Software Developers' Association) code of practice, which ensures high standards in business software. IRIS is also a Microsoft Gold Certified Partner, which recognises the highest level of competence and expertise with Microsoft technologies.

You are not expected to adapt your business to fit IRIS Exchequer; quite the reverse. Your solution will work the way you do and support your business processes. Platform and database options also enable you to make the right choice for your business.

“Realistic costs, a user-friendly interface and the ability to produce effective management reports were also a big influence. IRIS Exchequer ticked all the boxes and has become our central financial system, controlling all our sales order and purchase order processing.

A wealth of resources behind your system

IRIS is one of the largest privately owned software businesses in the UK

IRIS provides over 60,000 organisations with solutions ranging from accounting, ERP, HR and payroll to specialist software for accountancy practices, law firms and the not-for-profit sector.

This delivers the best of both worlds: an agile, specialist software company focused on providing outstanding products and service to mid-market organisations, with the resources of one of Britain's fastest growing companies behind every implementation.

As IRIS continues to expand, IRIS Exchequer clients have access to an ever-growing range of complementary products, from HR and payroll to project management, all from a single source and backed by the same high standards of product quality and service.

Award-winning software

The high quality and performance of IRIS Exchequer have netted numerous prestigious industry awards over the years, many based directly on the views of users

Given this record, it's perhaps not surprising that client retention rates are amongst the highest (95% plus) in the industry.

Awards success includes winning 'Financial Software Provider of the Year' in the Real Finance/CBI FDs' Excellence Awards more times than any other provider.

IRIS Exchequer was named the 'Best rated accounting product catering for businesses in the medium range' in an authoritative survey by the ICAEW (Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales), the industry body which also accredits IRIS Exchequer.

IRIS Exchequer has met our objectives and through its intelligent business and accounting software we have achieved our targets. It is a very flexible accounting system, giving us easy access to all the information we need from tracking revenue to receivables.

Long-term support for your business

Providing excellent technical support is a cornerstone of IRIS

Every step is taken to ensure a trouble-free implementation. As a client, you would be assigned your own project manager to advise and guide you and your team throughout the whole implementation process. Your project manager would discuss your requirements in depth and help to scope any customisation which may be needed.

A wide range of professional training and refresher courses ensure that your users will get the best return on IRIS Exchequer, right from day one. In addition to regular scheduled courses, bespoke training can be held on site, with content tailored to help you resolve specific business challenges.

IRIS has built a powerful team of highly skilled support technicians and maintains an attention to detail and personal service in all contact with clients. All staff undergo an intense, continual training programme and have achieved stringent qualifications to ensure that clients benefit from exceptional standards of support.

The support team is committed to ensuring that clients receive exactly what they need from their system now and in the future.

Listening to our clients

At IRIS, we're committed to staying focused on what matters most to our clients and understanding the challenges they face

Only in building close working relationships with our clients can we ensure that product development continues to address real business concerns. We welcome feedback and take every opportunity to canvass clients' views, informally and through independently conducted surveys.

We ensure that your time is spent to maximum effect in keeping up to date on new advances in IRIS Exchequer. Through events, a dedicated customers' website, web demonstrations, newsletters and interactive newswires, we show how you and your teams can achieve more with less effort.
